In this video, I walk you through the entire build process from start to finish: Designing a simple overhead cable arm Dumpster diving at work to find 3/4-inch conduit for the main support Cutting, fitting, and welding the arm to the plasma table Mounting the system. Cables have a natural desire to tangle when two or more are laid down together, so the cabling under our office desk was spaghetti junction. I even placed a folding table under the desk to put some of the cables on—to keep them off the floor and make cleaning under the desk easier—but they just. In this episode of ArcDroid Adventures, I build a custom cable management arm for my water plasma table so I don't have to stand there holding the torch cable while the ArcDroid is cutting. From using a cable tray to creating a simple box system, these tips offer practical solutions for hiding cords. You can use rubber, cardboard, or honestly any material that's strong enough to hold everything into place. All you have to do is cut two bone-shaped pieces. Effective cable management involves organizing and securing cables to keep your space tidy and safe. Premium Material: Made of highly sturdy and quality.
